Acolytes and Extraordinary Ministers of Holy Communion

The primary role of the Acolytes and Extraordinary Ministers of Holy Communion is the distribution of Holy Communion to parishioners and others who are ill or unable to attend Mass. This role is the essential part of our mission. We may be the only contact, with the exception of the Priests, that these people have with the Parish.

An acolyte, who is an ordained Minister of the Church, also assists at the Altar during Mass and on occasions may be called upon to conduct Holy Communion services when Priests not are available. Extraordinary Ministers of Holy Communion assist at Mass with the distribution of communion.

Acolytes and Ministers are selected by the Parish Priest and are required to undertake study in the protocols and procedures for the performance of their duties.
